Doctor Profile Gastroenterology

Associate Professor Barbara Demediuk

MBBS FRACP

Associate Professor Barbara Demediuk is a highly regarded Melbourne gastroenterologist and endoscopist dedicated to providing compassionate, patient-centred care for individuals experiencing digestive health concerns.

With extensive experience in gastroenterology and endoscopy, Associate Professor Demediuk specialises in the diagnosis and management of a wide range of gastrointestinal conditions, including reflux and heartburn, swallowing difficulties, abdominal pain and bloating, rectal bleeding, and other disorders of the digestive system.

Barbara graduated with Honours from the University of Melbourne before undertaking specialist training in Gastroenterology and Hepatology at The Royal Melbourne Hospital. She subsequently completed advanced international training at Massachusetts General Hospital and Harvard Medical School in Boston, USA, further enhancing her expertise in the field.

Upon returning to Melbourne, she worked at the prestigious Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research in Parkville and has maintained a strong commitment to clinical excellence, research, and medical education. Associate Professor Demediuk is actively involved in teaching and mentoring junior doctors and advanced gastroenterology trainees, contributing to the development of the next generation of specialists.
